

Important Questions Class 7 English An Alien Hand

Chapter 4

Question 1. What does Chandni look like?

Answer: Chandni was a cheerful young and beautiful goat with two little horns on her head, and her eyes used to sparkle like little stars. In addition, she was as white as snow and as soft as cotton. She was delightful to be around and paid close attention to Abbu Khan's stories. She was very attentive and affectionate. Abbu Khan named his goat Chandni because it means moonlight. He liked Chandni and would share numerous stories of his friends who had passed away.

Question 2. Between the wolf and Chandni, who was the stronger?

Answer: When the wolf and Chandni were fighting, one could tell that the wolf was the stronger of the two. He was quite big and ferocious. This made Chandni scary and dangerous. Nonetheless, she was determined to fight back for a reason that it would be preferable to perish in the field than to dwell in a tiny hut. She decided to fight to uphold her independence, and she died doing so.

Question 3. Why did Chandni fight the wolf?

Answer: Chandni decides to fight back as she thinks it is better to die in the open field than to live in a small hut. It was scary and dangerous to engage in combat with a big and ferocious wolf. Therefore, she concludes that she will go ahead and confront the wolf. Initially, she discovered her newfound freedom, and she wished to live that dream. . Chandni was also given an offer by the pack of wild goats but she did not want to compromise on her freedom. For Chandni, her freedom was the most important, and she was unwilling to let go of it at any cost.

Question 4. Why did Abbu Khan's goats gradually depart from him?

Answer: Abbu Khan was unfortunate about the goats. One fine night, one of his goats would tug on the line and then roam into the hills and beyond. Goats like their independence, and rather being tethered to trees or poles. The best hill breed goats, who also enjoy living in freedom, were kept by Abbu Khan. As a result, they would typically run whenever they got an opportunity. Chandni too wanted to enjoy her freedom, only to be killed by an elderly wolf that lived in the hills. Abbu Khan was angry and devastated when he failed in his objective.

Question 5. Describe the character of Abbu Khan.

Answer: An old and elderly man named Abbu Khan was well-known in Almora. He lived alone, except for a few goats he kept as pets. He gave his goats funny names like Kalua, Moongia, and Gujri. He would return with them at night and fasten a string around the neck of each goat. He would take them out for grazing during the day and speak to them as if they were his children.

Question 6. How was Abbu Khan mistaken again?

Answer: Abbu Khan adored his goats a lot and Chandni was special among them. Chandni also left him, and it was hard to accept it. . However, he was mistaken because Chandni started to ignore him; she won't even eat the green grass that Abbu Khan brought. He was quite perplexed by Chandni's behaviour. Later it was discovered that Chandni didn't wish to live with him, and she wanted her freedom at any cost.

Question 7. What did Chandni do when she was in the hills?

Answer: She had the impression that the tall trees greeted her as she arrived at the hills. She was independent and roamed around freely. She found amusement in the flowering of the flowers. On the same day, she spent hours playing on the green hillsides. Moreover, Chandni ran into a herd of wild goats who invited her to join them. But she turned them down since she preferred being alone and wanted to enjoy her freedom.

Question 8. What happened at the end of the story?

Answer: The wolf emerged from the bushes as darkness fell. He glared dreadfully at Chandni with eyes that shone like a flaming fire. Undeterred like a brave soldier, Chandni displayed courage by remaining steadfast on her feet. Then the fighting started, and it continued through the night. Chandni was covered in blood and found dead on the ground the following morning. Despite being exhausted and sleepy, the wolf was prepared to devour her.

Question 9. Chandni is the epitome of freedom. Explain.

Answer: Chandni was an adorable goat of Abbu Khan, an old man. He raised her with fatherly love and care. Abbu Khan used to tell stories about goats who dared to run away and were killed by the wolf. He usually brought her food and gave her every comfort. However, her desire for freedom did not deter her. Abbu Khan did try to stop her, and she never gave up. Chandni was brave, and she always enjoyed her taste of freedom when she sneaked out of Abbu Khan's place. It was not before she was confronted with a big, ferocious wolf. She fought bravely and never gave up. To conclude, she sacrificed her life to enjoy her freedom. We can say that she lived her life bravely and well. She was the epitome of freedom.

Question 10. Why did Chandni hate the rope around her neck?

Answer: Chandni, like other goats, never liked the rope around her neck as it restricted her freedom of movement and didn't allow her to venture freely into the woods. She always wanted to run across the green fields towards the hills and beyond. Yet, the tethered rope around her neck stopped her from doing so.

Question 11. Why did Chandni never agree to join the group of wild goats?

Answer: Chandni always loved her freedom and enjoyed every minute of it. Therefore, she did not join them.

Question 12. How did Abbu Khan use to take care of his goats?

Answer: Abbu Khan always loved his goats and always took care of his goats. He will take them for grazing and sometimes talk about the stories of his friends. Later at night, he would bring the little pack of goats to his hut and put a string around the neck of each goat to keep them safe.

Question 13. Why did Abbu Khan not wish to leave Chandni?

Answer: Abbu Khan's newest young goat was named Chandni. She had a pleasant disposition and would listen to Abbu Khan's stories with much affection and curiosity. Chandni means moonlight, he gave her that name and raised her like her own kid. He adored and loved her; therefore, he did not wish Chandni to let go of him.

Question 14. Why was Abbu Khan so adamant about staying with Chandni?

Answer: Despite having a deep love and affection for his goats. He did not, however, want them to travel to the hills since an elderly, deadly wolf dwelt there. The wolf kills the goats and devours them as they flee towards the hills. He did not want Chandni to travel to the hills because of this.
