Ans. The major differences between national party and regional party are as under:

- National party has influence all over the country or in several states of India. The influence of a regional party is limited to a state or region,
- National parties take interest in national as well as international issues where-as regional or state parties are interested in promoting regional/ state interests only.
- The national parties have to harmonise the national as well as state interest where-as regional parties usually stand for greater autonomy of the states.
- For a national party, an exclusive symbol is kept reserved through out the country, In case of a regional party a symbol is reserved for it in the state in which it is recognized.
- National parties have board base but regional parties have smaller base

Q.9 Write a brief note on Bhartiya Janata Party and Indian National Congress.

Ans. The Bhartiya Janata Party was started in 1980 from the erstwhile Bhartiya Jana Sangh. Its support base grew rapidly in the 1990s. Earlier, it was limited to the north and western parts of the country, but now it has a pan – Indian base. The BJP has governments in 19 states. Ideologically the party is rightist. It wants to build a strong, modern India by drawing inspiration from ancient culture and values. It wants full territorial and political integration of Jammu and Kashmir with India, a uniform civil code for all people living in the country irrespective of religion, and ban on religions conversions. It is also supporter of economic liberalizations. The Indian National Congress was founded in 1885. It was the dominant party of Indian Politics at the national level and to a large extent at the state level for a long time. Since 1989 its influence has declined, but it still maintains a presence across the entire country. The party has seen many splits over the years, Ideologically, the party is centrist. It support secularism and economic liberalization, Welfare of the weaker section of the society.

Q. 10 Why don't parties give enough tickets to women ? Is that also due to the lack of internal democracy ?

Ans. Most of the Indian societies have patriarchal mentality. Men do not want to loose power if the parties give tickets to women, steadily the power will go into woman's hands. The patriarchal Indian Society is not ready to accept it. That is why women reservation bill is pending for a long time. Yes, this is an example of lack of internal democracy and not proper faith in capabilities of women.
