Chronobiology : The Science of Time is within Us.

- (1) Beneath the conscious rhythm of our waking lives lies a subtler, deeply embedded tempo of our body's internal clock, orchestrated by the field of chronobiology. This clock doesn't tick with mechanical precision but rather responds to cues from nature : the rising sun, the fading light, or the temperature of the wind. Governed by the suprachiasmatic nucleus in the brain, this circadian rhythm aligns our sleep, metabolism, hormone release, and even mood with the 24-hour cycle.
- (2) Scientists have discovered that disrupting this internal clock whether through jet lag, night shifts, or excessive exposure to screens can lead to a biological desynchronization that affects everything from digestion to memory. A study from the University of Colorado found that just one week of camping away from artificial light, resets participants' circadian rhythm entirely. The body, it seems, remembers the sun even when the mind forgets.
- (3) What's striking is the clock's inflexible loyalty to nature. Artificial attempts to override it such as caffeine-induced wakefulness or screen-induced sleeplessness may work temporarily but often has a hidden cost : chronic fatigue, hormonal imbalance and weakened immunity. Its not just sleep we lose, it's the invisible equilibrium that our biology depends on.

- (4) Modern life, with its blurring of day and night, has birthed what experts call ‘social jet lag’ a state where our societal obligations pull us in one temporal direction, while our biology tugs us in another. Adolescents are particularly vulnerable, as their natural clocks shift later during puberty, clashing with early school timings. The result ? A generation persistently deprived of meaningful rest.
- (5) What is the way forward – we need to understand that sleep deficiency and chronic fatigue are considered major risk factors for diseases, depression and accidents. People must take care of sleep hygiene at regular time, avoid screen time before bed time, and ensure comfortable conditions. Taking short breaks for stretching, breathing, or a few hours of exercise reduces tension. When body demands rest, it should not be ignored. One must respond to it rather than ignoring it.
- (6) Chronobiologists argue that respecting internal time could transform public health. Adjusting school hours, designing light-conscious architecture or aligning work shifts with biological peaks could reduce stress and enhance productivity. As we continue racing against time, perhaps the most radical act is to slow down and listen to the timekeepers within us quiet, persistent and wise.

Answer the following questions based on the above passage :

- (i) According to paragraph 1, what role does the suprachiasmatic nucleus play in our daily lives ?

1

(ii) How does the author use the metaphor 'the body remembers the sun even when the mind forgets' in paragraph 1 ? 1

(iii) Read and complete the following sentence suitably (Para 2).
The phrase biological desynchronization refers to the state in which the : 1

Choose the correct response from the two options to complete the sentence.

(A) body's natural rhythms no longer align with external time cues.

(B) brain stops producing hormones due to stress.

(iv) Complete the following suitably with ONE advantage with reference to Para 2.

Designating specific hours/days for screen free activity can help _____ . 1

(v) Why does the writer refer to the circadian clock's loyalty to nature as inflexible ? (Para 3) 1

(A) operates independently of external environments.

(B) resists manipulation through artificial means.

(C) helps regulate heart rate very quickly.

(D) is governed generally by only genetics.

- (vi) Provide ONE textual evidence to support ‘The body pays a hidden price for tampering with its natural rhythms’. (Para 3) 1
- (vii) In the line ‘... societal obligations pull us in one temporal direction, while our biology tugs us in another’, what does this contrast reveal about modern life ? (Para 4) 1
- (viii) Scientists use the term ‘social jet lag’ in paragraph 4 to describe the modern sleep crisis to _____ . 1
- (A) compare how schedules disrupt our internal clock, similar to time zone travel confusion.
- (B) show that digital tools help improve sleep and daily performance in modern life.
- (C) suggest that regular travel is needed to maintain focus and healthy body rhythms.
- (D) points out that teenagers stay awake late at night without valid biological reasons.
- (ix) Explain why adolescents may be at risk of internal time disruption. (Para 4-5) 2
- (x) Based on paragraph 6, identify possible obstacles to applying chronobiological principles in everyday life. 2

The Rise of Urban Farming in Indian Cities :

A sustainable future or Fleeting Trend

Introduction :

- (1) As India's metropolises swell under the weight of population growth, pollution and food insecurity, a quiet revolution is unfolding on rooftops and balconies : urban farming. Once seen as a hobby for the eco-conscious elite, urban agriculture is now being explored as a practical solution to city-based food shortages, environmental degradation, and even mental health challenges.

Methodology – survey – explanation

- (2) In 2024, a survey by the Indian Institute of Sustainable Agriculture revealed that 1 in 7 urban households in Tier-1 cities like Delhi, Mumbai, and Bengaluru, now practise some form of food cultivation ranging from herbs on kitchen shelves to aquaponic systems on terraces. The motivations are varied : some grow spinach and tomatoes to escape pesticide exposure, while others experiment with hydroponics as a side hustle. Municipal authorities are also catching on; in Chennai and Pune, tax rebates and community grants are now offered to promote green roof tops.

Results :

(3)

Year	City	% of Households Engaged	Notable Initiatives
2022	Bengaluru	9%	'Grow Your Own Food' Campaign
2023	Delhi	11%	Rooftop farming subsidy scheme
2024	Pune	15%	Terrace Garden Tax Rebate
2025	Hyderabad	18% (projected)	App-based Micro Farm Programme

Data Table : Urban Farming Trends (2022-2025)

Effects :

Advocates urge that farming reduces 'food miles' (the distance food travels from farm to fork), improves air quality, and reconnects city dwellers with the rhythms of nature. Critics, however, are skeptical. They argue that lack of space, high initial costs for equipment, and unreliable yields make urban farming unsustainable at scale. Moreover, without regulation, concern about rooftop safety and water use efficiency persists.

Implications :

(4) Still, the momentum is growing. NGOs like 'Haryali' and start-ups like 'Rangeen' have emerged, offering seed kits, app-based guidance and balcony farming workshops. For young professionals navigating fast-paced lives, this offers something tangible : control, calm and climate action, all from a window ledge.

Conclusion :

- (5) Whether urban farming becomes a permanent fixture of Indian city life or remains a well-intentioned trend will depend not just on individual choices but on how cities plan, regulate and integrate agriculture into their concrete jungles.

Answer the following questions, based on the above passage :

Complete the following suitably :

- (i) In the introduction (Para 1), the writer emphasizes on the transformative potential of a quiet revolution by _____. 1
- (ii) What would the following be classified as ? 1
- ‘In Chennai and Pune, tax rebates and community grants are now offered to promote green roof tops’.
- (A) primary purpose (B) incentives
- (C) methodology (D) implications
- (iii) Based on the passage, why might people opt to grow spinach and tomatoes on their own at home rather than purchasing them ? (Para 2) 1
- (iv) If the current trend as depicted in the table continues, which Indian city is most likely to emerge as a national model for tech-integrated urban farming by 2026 ? Give your reasoning. 2
- (v) Analyze from the given data, what distinguishes Pune’s approach from Hyderabad’s in encouraging urban farming ? 1

- (vi) Write any two major challenges that have catalyzed the rise of urban farming. 1
- (vii) Name two incentives provided by NGOs or start-ups that encourage urban farming. How does this movement benefit the urban workforce ? (Para 4) 2
- (viii) Which of the following is NOT a challenge associated with urban farming, according to the passage ? 1
- (A) limited space availability (B) excessive food production
(C) high equipment costs (D) inconsistent production

7. Read the following extracts and answer the questions for ANY ONE of the given two (A) or (B) :

1 × 6 = 6

(A) The little house was out with a little new shed

In front at the edge of the road where traffic sped,

A roadside stand that pathetically pled,

It would not be fair to say for a dole of bread

But for some of the money, the cash, whose flow supports

The flower of cities from sinking and withering faint.

The polished traffic passed with a mind ahead,

Or if ever aside a moment, then out of sorts

At having the landscape marred with artless paint

Of sign that with N turned wrong and S turned wrong

(A Roadside Stand)

- (i) What does the phrase ‘the flower of cities’ symbolically represent in the context of the poem ?
- (ii) Read the statement and choose the correct option :

Assertion (A) : The roadside stand is a desperate appeal for inclusion in economic progress.

Reason (R) : The villagers do not seek charity but want to be part of the mainstream financial flow that nourishes urban centers.

- (A) Both (A) and (R) are true, and (R) is the correct explanation of (A).
- (B) Both (A) and (R) are true, but (R) is not the correct explanation of (A).

(D) detached and factual

9. Read the following extracts and answer the questions for ANY ONE of the given two (A) or (B) : 1 × 6 = 6

(A) The officials felt powerless without Gandhi's cooperation. He helped them regulate the crowd. He was polite and friendly. He was giving them concrete proof that their might, hitherto dreaded and unquestioned, could be challenged by Indians.

The government was baffled. The prosecutor requested the judge to postpone the trial. Apparently, the authorities wished to consult their superiors. Gandhi protested against the delay. He read a statement pleading guilty. He was involved, he told the court, in a 'conflict of duties' – on the one hand, not to set a bad example as a lawbreaker, on the other hand, to render the 'humanitarian and national service' for which he had come. He disregarded the order to leave, 'not for want of respect for lawful authority, but in obedience to the higher law of our being, the voice of conscience'. He asked for the penalty due. (Indigo)

- (i) Gandhi's method of engaging with the officials, as depicted in the passage, primarily demonstrated :
- (A) the power of non-violent resistance and moral authority.
 - (B) his willingness to compromise on key principles for cooperation.
 - (C) a tactical retreat to gain future advantages.
 - (D) a strategy of negotiation and reconciliation.

- (ii) Select the correct option from those given in brackets to fill in the blanks.

The reaction of the officials when Gandhi regulated the crowd was of _____. (bafflement/indifference)

- (iii) Complete the following sentence suitably :

The government's decision to postpone the trial to consult higher authorities implies that they _____.

- (iv) What is reflected through the phrase 'voice of conscience' in the given excerpt ?

- (v) Choose the correct option :

“On the one hand not to set a bad example as a lawbreaker; on the other hand, to render humanitarian and national service”

The above line from the extract expresses _____.

- (A) conflict (B) humiliation
(C) admiration (D) suppression

- (vi) Complete the following with a suitable reason :

Gandhi asked for the penalty due because _____.

9. (B) After dark she walked by the canal, along a sheltered part lighted only by the glare of the lamps from the wharf across the water, and the unceasing drone of the city was muffled and distant. It was a place she had often played in when she was a child. There was a wooden bench beneath a solitary elm where lovers sometime came. She sat down to wait. It was a perfect place, she had always thought so, for a meeting of this kind. For those who wished not be observed. She knew he would approve. (Going Places)

- (i) Where did she walk after it was dark ?
- (ii) Why does the sound of the city being ‘muffled and distant’ matter in the context of her present mood ?
- (A) reflects her desire to escape the noise of daily life.
- (B) suggests a peaceful contrast to her inner excitement.
- (C) creates a dreamy atmosphere that supports her fantasy.
- (D) emphasizes her emotional detachment from the real world.
- (iii) How does the description of the setting contribute to the mood of the extract ?
- (A) creates a nostalgic and emotionally reflective tone through memories.
- (B) builds suspense and tension with dark, unfamiliar surroundings.
- (C) highlights a lively and energetic atmosphere with city sounds.
- (D) emphasizes a sense of urgency and action in Sophie’s movements.
- (iv) Complete the following sentence with a reason :
- She chose the particular location for her meeting because _____.
- (v) Why did she feel that he would approve of her choice of location?
- (vi) Complete the following with a suitable reason :
- She sat down on a wooden bench beneath the solitary elm because _____.
